

We are Now White River Nutrition

We are excited to announce that White River Soy Processing will now be known as White River Nutrition, effective immediately.

This name change more accurately reflects our mission to provide the highest quality soy products for better nutritional outcomes and reflects the wider range of nutritional food and feed products now offered after our February 2024 acquisition of the Creston, Iowa facility from Benson Hill, Inc.

In addition to the non-GMO and GMO soybean meal and oil produced at our Seymour, Indiana facility, our Creston, Iowa location produces non-GMO and GMO soybean meal, soy white flake, flour, grits and soybean oil for domestic and global markets for use as food and feed ingredients and the foundation for the production of concentrates, isolates, and textured soy protein products. The Creston facility allows us to expand our product offerings into the food grade market.

Though we have a new name, we are still the same company. White River Nutrition remains committed to excellence in production and safety for our employees and producing the highest quality products for better nutritional outcomes. We will continue to leverage our extensive expertise and capabilities to ensure the highest quality and safety standards for our products and we are focused on developing solutions that meet the evolving needs of our customers.

White River Nutrition looks forward to continue serving customers at both ends of the value chain, our farmer and protein customers. We look forward to providing the same dedication and quality under our new name that better reflects our mission to provide superior products for better nutritional outcomes.
